

Dear JSBMF

Warm greetings to you from Kathmandu!

I want to wish you a very Happy Thanksgiving. Even though we do not celebrate Thanksgiving here in Nepal the way you do in the USA, my heart is full of gratitude to God for His faithfulness.

Christmas is always a wonderful opportunity for us to share the love of Christ with people in my community. This year, for our Christmas outreach, we are preparing simple but meaningful gifts that help us share the Gospel in a practical way. We hope to provide school uniforms and bags for students, warm scarves and blankets for elderly women who face the cold winter, and essential food packages for families who are struggling. These small acts of kindness are our way of reminding people that Christ cares for them and that they are not forgotten.

As the pastor of a young church, it is my desire to cultivate a heart of compassion in our congregation—where Christmas is not just something we celebrate inside the church but something we express through serving others. My prayer is that this becomes a beautiful tradition for many years to come.

Please keep us in your prayers as we prepare and carry out these outreach activities. Your prayers and friendship mean a great deal to me. May God help us to use this opportunity to bring hope and joy to many lives.

With warm blessings in Christ,
